DeVries wins reserve champion 4-H market steer at Iowa State Fair

Lainey DeVries of Red Oak exhibited the Reserve Grand Champion 4-H Market Steer at the Iowa State Fair in Des Moines. (Iowa Foundation For Agricultural Advancement)

Tess Nelson
The Red Oak Express

Last week was a very exciting and memorable one for Lainey DeVries of Red Oak. DeVries, the daughter of Dave and Tammy DeVries and a senior at Red Oak High School, exhibited the reserve grand champion 4-H market steer at the Iowa State Fair.

At the state fair, DeVries' steer weighed 1349 and was shown in the Charolais division, where she first won the class of six steers, followed by the Charolais division. This allowed her to compete in the championship show.

"When we left home, we felt that he was in a position to do well, but the state of Iowa is known to have a very competitive steer show," Lainey recalled. "We were hoping for the best, but I knew it would be tough."

Even after the judge selected the grand champion, she said she still felt confident in her steer.

"I knew he was special, as I had been competitive with the champion steer all year," she said.

Having a steer selected as reserve grand champion at a state fair is an experience most exhibitors don't get to experience. DeVries said she fully understands its rarity and said it's something she'll remember forever. She added it's going to be extremely tough to place that high, or higher, next year.

"This has been an unforgettable experience, but next year's goal might have to be just a little bit higher."

At the state fair, grand and reserve champions of each species participated in the sale of champions, another rare and overly memorable experience.

"The sale of champions was exhilarating as it was something that I had never experienced before," said DeVries. "Bringing my steer onto the purple shavings of the sale ring was an experience I will never forget. My steer sold for $65,500 to Fareway."

DeVries, a member of the Stennett Panthers 4-H Club, has been showing cattle for nine years.

School board approves of unused equipment disposal

Nick Johansen

The Red Oak School Board tackled a light agenda at its regular meeting Aug. 24.

Superintendent Ron Lorenz discussed options for the disposal of old lockers and a five-man sled.

"We're working to clean up the stadium area a little bit, and we have old lockers that date back to the 1960s and 70s that we took out of the field house. The blocking sled also hasn't been used in quite some time," advised Lorenz.

As the law says the board has discretion to dispose of those items in any legal means, there was no need to have a hearing with the items valued at less than $5,000.

"We would be able to dispose of the items using Purple Wave, which is the online auction service that we used to dispose of the items at Webster and Bancroft as well as a bus," commented Lorenz.

The board approved the use of Purple Wave to dispose of the items. If no bids are received, the lockers and sled

"It will provide the board with flexibility to use district management funds for either early retirement programs or locally defined teacher recruitment incentives," said Lorenz.

The board also wanted to see some clarification regarding open enrollment regulations, specifically funding deadlines, as well as adequate school funding, and mental health reports.

Also on the agenda was approval of a bid for a replacement boiler at the technology center. After receiving an estimated cost of $291,000, and the district received two bids, with the low bid from Ray Martin at $163,000.

"The bid from Ray Martin was considerably less expensive, and we were really glad about that," commented Lorenz.

Piggies Paradise celebrates success

Nick Johansen
The Red Oak Express

Piggies Paradise, the local guinea pig rescue shelter in Red Oak will be celebrating its first anniversary at its location at 422 E. Reed St. in October.

The shelter was spearheaded by co-directors Tabatha Updegrave and Jolene Studey, who started operating out of their homes in February 2020, before the increased need in the community spurred Updegrave and Studey to open up the Reed Street location.

Studey said the shelter had some recent good news. They received their licensing earlier this month.

"We've been trying to get licensed since last November, but with COVID, and the fact that the inspector was in the hospital a couple of times, they told us to just keep doing what we were doing. We passed the state inspection with flying colors, and he said he couldn't nitpick anything we were doing," Studey said.

The shelter is currently housing roughly 100 guinea pigs, and Studey and Updegrave estimate that they have adopted out more than 500 guinea pigs since the shelter was started. Updegrave said they take in any in need.

"We take in sick ones, and those that are older. Guinea pigs can live up to 10 years, so we have guinea pigs that are seven or eight year olds, and they usually don't get adopted out, so this is their sanctuary. We're currently the largest licensed guinea pig sanctuary in Iowa, and we're the only licensed shelter in Southwest Iowa," commented Updegrave.

Having the distinction, Updegrave said, is a good feeling, because it creates a positive environment for the guinea pigs they shelter.

"We have a place for them where they are going to be safe, and fed, and happy, which is exactly what they need," Updegrave said.

Studey said the shelter is in a near-constant state of taking in and adopting out guinea pigs.

"I say it's a revolving door. We adopt out, and within a day, we have the cage refilled. I have a waiting list of people currently waiting to surrender their guinea pigs. If we had a larger building we could adopt more, but currently we are unable. We also have some in foster care," Studey advised.

Studey attributes the revolving door quality to would-be pet owners not knowing all the facts when it comes to adopting and taking care of guinea pigs.

"People get them, and they don't realize how long they live, and they are a higher-maintenance animal to take care of than a hamster. They're awake 14 hours a day, unlike a hamster, which sleeps most of the day. They need veggies every day, they need fleece bedding, and hay 24/7. I think in many cases, parents buy one for their kids, and the kids simply can't keep up with the care," stated Studey.

Updegrave added that since they spend the majority of the time in a cage, and are less interactive than a dog or a cat, that it can sometimes be easier to surrender one than another kind of animal.

As Piggies Paradise has grown as an organization, so has their reputation, and Studey said people have driven for hours to

Lewellen chosen as county safety coordinator

Nick Johansen
The Red Oak Express

The Montgomery County Board of Supervisors has made a decision regarding a new safety coordinator.

At the regular meeting Aug. 16, Supervisor Mike Olson said they had narrowed the prospective candidates down to one choice.

“Charla Schmid and I conducted three interviews on Aug. 15. All three candidates had a lot of good points, and all three were very good. After considerable conversation and thought, our top choice for the position was Morgan Lewellen, and that is our recommendation,” Olson said.

Supervisor Donna Robinson asked if hours, job description, and the wage were all presented and deemed acceptable by Lewellen. Olson confirmed that Lewellen approved of the job duties and the salary. Lewellen currently serves as a dispatcher in the Montgomery County Communications Center. Olson felt she should take over the position immediately.

“In this, I think the sooner we get them in place the better. We can get Lewellen in place and get her exposed to what she’s going to be dealing with and move on from there,” said Olson.

The supervisors unanimously approved the appointment of Morgan Lewellen as safety coordinator.

The supervisors also heard comments from Jan Norris, who had a few follow-up comments to a presentation given to the supervisors at the Aug. 10 meeting by Kaylee Langrell from Turnkey Logistics, who also represented Summit Carbon Solutions. When asked about the safety of carbon gas pipelines, Langrell’s response, according to Norris, was incorrect according to the Federal Pipeline Regulatory Agency.

“After 50 people were injured in a town in Mississippi two years ago, a full investigation was conducted and found that CO² was what had entered the victims, not hydrogen sulfide, as Langrell stated. In fact, because of that accident, new rulemaking is being conducted to update standards for CO² pipelines. Imposing the same safety standards for natural gas pipelines was found to be Iowa Utilities Board permit from being issued, but it’s the job of the supervisors to prepare the county in case it goes through,” commented Norris. “I am hopeful the planning and zoning commission will be able to draft an effective and comprehensive pipeline ordinance to protect Montgomery County and our taxpayers. We will have to take our chances whether or not the state will supercede it, but our county deserves the effort.”

Lastly, Supervisors Chair Mark Peterson issued a statement to the department heads that more work was needed for the Nishna Productions employees.

“Nishna Productions is doing shredding for us, and they’re running short on work. If there are offices that can use that, it would be good to get that material taken care of. Dan Wright has offered to move things around, and a vault is being earmarked to keep secured documents locked up until the Nishna Productions workers can get to it,” advised Peterson.

inadequate,” Norris said.

Norris also referenced the statement made by Langrell, that this pipeline project was the first Summit had undertaken. She urged the Montgomery County Planning and Zoning Commission to take preemptive action.

“The commission should be asked to draft a pipeline ordinance immediately. The commission has placed a one-year moratorium on wind energy, and the Southwest Iowa Planning Council is helping with comprehensive plans, but the pipeline is urgent. I am hopeful opposition will be successful in stopping an

Lainey DeVries shakes hands with the Iowa State Fair 4-H market steer judge after exhibiting the reserve champion 4-H market steer last week. (Linde’s Livestock Photos)

She has exhibited cattle at the Iowa State Fair for seven years.

She said her favorite part about showing cattle is the competitiveness and all of the people she has been able to meet through the industry. “Something that most people don’t know about showing cattle is the discipline it takes to prepare these animals for show. It takes lots of early mornings and late nights and hours of brushing, washing, rinsing, feeding, and showmanship practice,” she said.

Leading up to state fair, DeVries said her daily routine with her steer included bringing him into the barn before sun-up, rinsing him and brushing him to train and grow his hair. She also had to rinse and brush his hair again in the afternoon before turning him outside after sundown.

DeVries steer was purchased in October 2021 from Ty Webster with Webster Cattle Company in Powersville, Mo.

BILL MCFARLAND, 82

Bill S. McFarland, 82, Red Oak, passed away Tuesday, Aug. 16, 2022, at the Montgomery County Memorial Hospital, Red Oak.

Billy Sie McFarland, the son of Clyde and Laura (Lewis) McFarland, was born July 28, 1940, at Villisca. Bill was raised on a farm near Villisca and graduated from Villisca High School in 1957. He went to work at Hunt's Super Valu while he was in high school. He joined the Iowa Army National Guard, having served a full enlistment.

On Aug. 27, 1961, Bill was united in marriage to Judy L. Larson at the Stratton United Methodist Church. They made their home on the family farm northeast of Red Oak, where Bill dedicated his life to farming, even after they moved to Red Oak in 2003.

Bill enjoyed riding on the pontoon boat, camping with the family, and traveling. He especially loved having the children, grandchildren and great-grandkids around. Bill was a member of the Stratton United Methodist Church.

Bill was preceded in death by his parents; wife, Judy on Dec.26, 2019; and four sisters, Juanita, Bernice, Bonnie and Mary Jane.

Bill is survived by his three children, Leslie McFarland of Red Oak; Teresa (Lon) Richardson of Fort Bridger, Wyo.; and Don McFarland of Red Oak; 12 grandchildren; 22 great-grandchildren; and brother-in-law, Axel (Bette) Larson of Red Oak; nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends.

May God bless his memory and give strength to those who mourn.

Funeral Service was held Friday, Aug. 19, 2022, at Sellergren-Lindell-DeMarce Funeral Home.

Burial with military honors was at Evergreen Cemetery, Red Oak.

Memorials may be directed to the Stratton United Methodist Church. Remembrances and condolences may be shared with the family at sldfuneralhome.com. Sellergren-Lindell-DeMarce Funeral Home in in charge of arrangements.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Among the 15 winners were two Essex students, Cynthia Swain and Richard Tunnell.

Over the past year, the Iowa Department of Agriculture and Land Stewardship received submissions from K-12 students across the state and narrowed it down to 15 student artists for the 2022 issue of this annual calendar.

"Our Choose Iowa marketing program is about connecting Iowa farmers with consumers, and this contest extends that connection to our youngest Iowans in a fun and engaging way," said Secretary Naig. "While researching and creating their entries, students were able to learn more about how their everyday lives are connected to farmers and even consider a career in agriculture down the road.

Their creativity and involvement energizes and encourages me about the future of Iowa agriculture."

The 2022 calendar was available to fairgoers at the Choose Iowa booth in the Agriculture Building and the Iowa Department of Agriculture and Land Stewardship booth in the Varied Industries Building.

Students who are 18 years old or younger are invited to submit a drawing for the September 2023-August 2024 Choose Iowa Coloring Calendar.

Pictures should be drawn in a horizontal orientation using only black lines on plain white, 8.5 by 11-inch paper. The pictures should not be colored in.

Artwork may be submitted electronically to media@iowaagriculture.gov or mailed to the Iowa Department of Agriculture and Land Stewardship, Choose Iowa Coloring Calendar, 502 E. 9th St., Des Moines, IA 50319.

Each submission should include the artist's name, age, grade, school, address and hometown, along with a guardian's email and phone number.

Choose Iowa is an agricultural marketing initiative to increase the visibility of Iowa grown and raised foods.

By building on the growing demand for local foods, investing in value-added projects and helping consumers find and purchase Iowa-grown products, Choose Iowa gives farmers access to new markets and shortens the distance between farms and plates. Learn more at ChooseIowa.com.

THE TIME CAPSULE | ROY MARSHALL

Dr. Krick and the incredible cloud seeding machine

On an early August day when temperatures hit the upper 90s and the long-range forecast was dry and bleak as area pastures, a friend and long-time subscriber suggested an article on local cloud seeding of the 1940s and '50s.

Requests are appreciated. I spent some time researching this one and found that organized cloud seeding in Montgomery County spanned more than a decade.

While quite a story, this paper might not be the place for it.

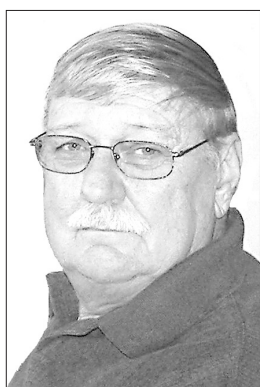

One deterrent is names. I'm sure there'd be no reluctance in identifying the controversial Dr. Irving P. Krick, founder of the Water Resource Development Corporation, which he based in Denver.

One could read all day about Dr. Krick (1906-1996), and I'd encourage doing so. He was a California-born and educated meteorologist and self-promoter who first gained public attention by providing weather advice to our military during World War II.

Sometimes he was right, sometimes not. Several historical accounts tell us Krick was so wrong about his D-Day forecast that had his recommendation been accepted the result would have been disastrous.

After the war he founded the nation's first privately-owned weather service, then went about developing and selling forecasts.

He also promoted his cloud seeding method, which was said to potentially double the amount of rainfall, end droughts and cause deserts to bloom.

He's fair game, but what about the names you'd be more familiar with; those of local supporters or Dr. Krick? Area farmers, cattlemen, even a prominent Red Oak banker, all active in the Montgomery County Weather Modification Administration?

Local men who proposed to pay themselves and collect from others anywhere from 6 cents to $1 per acre of farmland to pay for costs associated with Krick's rainmaking?

Should we name the operators of Dr. Krick's cloud seeding generator? Both residents of Emerson, they were on standby and waiting for phone calls from Krick saying atmospheric conditions were optimal; time to light the propane burner, add a specified amount of silver iodide crystals to the oven, then watch as smoke and vapor drifted skyward to cool and form flakes that fell on receptive clouds.

Few, if any, of those directly involved are still around, but their children and grandchildren are. I talked to one of them.

Letters to the Editor

The Red Oak Express supports healthy community discourse and encourages readers to submit a letter to the editor. Letters must be signed and include a phone number for verification purposes. They can be submitted by mail or dropped off at 2012 Commerce Drive, Red Oak, Iowa, 51566, or emailed to news@redoakexpress.com, or entered through our website at redoakexpress.com. Letters should be concise and centered on a single topic. All letters are subject to editing for length, taste, accuracy, liability, or other reasons. The Express is under no obligation to print any letter. If you have questions, contact the Express office at 712-623-2566 or news@redoakexpress.com.

After a good crop year he took credit. After a bad one he said it would have been even worse without him. And no one could prove him wrong.

A problem in knowing the value of seeding clouds is that atmospheric conditions change constantly.

Probabilities can be established, but definitive evidence relies on repeated tests under identical circumstances, and identical circumstances are rare. People who study these things believe they know more now than then, yet opinions still differ.

A widely accepted position today is that cloud seeding is more likely to slightly increase snowfall than to effect rain, but in extreme and extended drought even a small amount of moisture may be worth the investment.

Regardless, with corn fields looking bad and beans even worse, I decided to submit the column, including names, and see if the editor let it pass. Then, on August 15, a light rain began to fall. By morning we had 1.5 inches; the first soaker in six weeks.

Dr. Krick may have been sending a message, so I'll save the article for the next time we need rain. A dollar an acre, adjusted for inflation, seems fair.

COVID remains a presence in county updates Beason

Nick Johansen
The Red Oak Express

Montgomery County Public Health is continuing to monitor COVID-19 cases in the county, and is noticing a bit of an uptick in cases.

Montgomery County Public Health coordinator Samantha Beason met with the supervisors at the regular meeting Aug. 16. Beason gave an update on the current COVID-19 totals, and advised a total of 2,375 tests have been given in the county.

"For our 14 day total, we've had 41 cases, in the last seven days we've had 17 cases, and in the last three days we've had three cases. Our total vaccine administration is at 55.5%," Beason explained.

Based on the numbers, Beason said it showed that COVID-19 was still prevalent in the county, and the recommendations were still the same as they were in the beginning.

"If you're sick, stay home.

Samantha Beason updates the supervisors on the latest COVID-19 numbers at the Aug. 16 meeting. (Nick Johansen/The Red Oak Express)

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention have updated the quarantine guidance a little bit. If you're exposed, there's no quarantine requirement. You're just supposed to wear a mask for the 10 days of your incubation period," advised Beason. "When it comes to isolation, it's five days at home, five days wearing a mask. They are no longer recommending testing asymptomatic people. We haven't seen anything from the state yet, those are guidelines from the CDC," Beason said.

The Montgomery County Public Health Office still had COVID test kits available for those needing to be tested. Also, Beason said anyone looking to get the COVID-19 vaccine, or a booster, can still do so from a variety of locations in the community.

"Vaccines are available at the Montgomery County Memorial Hospital Physicians Clinic, or Internal Hy-Vee, and Medicap Pharmacy. We're also available to provide them to anyone who can't get to the clinic or if they're homebound. We will collect the vaccine and administer it to the homebound resident," stated Beason.

Beason also advised the county had yet to see any confirmed cases of Monkeypox.

"So far, Pottawattamie County is the closest it has gotten to us. It's spread through close contact with an infected person, or by sharing clothes. It's not transmitted like COVID, so you're not as likely to get Monkeypox as you are to get COVID."

Beason said her office is also working with the area schools to prepare kids for the upcoming school year and vaccination requirements.

"We're working to make sure all of the incoming kindergartners, seventh, and 12th graders all have the required immunizations before the start of school. It's a state law that if they don't have them, they're not supposed to attend school."

Beason also advised the supervisors her employees are working to keep providing the same quality of coverage from the General Assistance office that visitors received from former administrator Sonia Jackson, who recently retired from the post.

"We're still learning the ins and outs of everything, like the payee information, and general information. We'd also like to sit down at some point and review what the expectations are," Beason said.

Doggy dip event at Red Oak pool Aug. 28

Nick Johansen
The Red Oak Express

The Red Oak Park and Tree Board held its regular monthly meeting Aug. 11.

On the agenda was approval of a request to hold a doggie dip event at the Red Oak Pool from 5 to 7 p.m on Aug. 28. Sara Orme has been spearheading the event, suggested waiving the fee to use the pool. Park Board Chairman Bill Drey was in agreement to waive the fee.

The board approved a motion to waive the rental fee, and an insurance waiver.

Cost to attend is $5 for one dog and two humans, and an additional $1 for each additional human. Only cash or checks will be accepted, and season passes will not be honored.

Additionally, there are some guidelines and rules in place for everyone who participates in the doggie dip event.

- All dogs must be licensed and up-to-date on vaccines, including Rabies, Distemper/PARVO, and Bordetella.

- Owners are responsible for any damage or injury caused by their dogs, and must clean up after their dogs if they make a mess.

- Participants must be 18 years or older to bring a dog; children are welcome to attend with a parent or guardian.

- All dogs must be at least six months old and on a leash. Participants are requested to leave toys at home.

- Finally, all participants must sign a 2022 doggie dip waiver, which will be available at the door.

All proceeds from the event will be donated to the Heart of Southwest Iowa Animal Coalition.

The board also approved a request from the Friends of the Red Oak Trails to hold Trick or Treat on the Trail from 4:30-6:30 p.m. Oct. 27 at the Evergreen Cemetery. Beau Boeye, representing the organization, said the event would be run the same way as it has been in years past.

"Our back-up plan would be like we did last year. We still need to get confirmation, but in the event of rain, we'd plan to hold the event at the Montgomery County Family YMCA," Boeye said.

Boeye gave an update on the Inman Trail project, a joint venture between the Friends of the Red Oak Trail, the Red Oak School District, and the City of Red Oak.

"It initially spearheaded from our Heritage Hill walking trail, connecting the downtown to Chautauqua Park. Then we really started focusing on the connection between Chautauqua Park and Evergreen Cemetery. After talking with cemetery superintendent Brad Baker about the congestion at Inman, and how it's causing damage to the cemetery grass, our priorities shifted and we saw a bigger opportunity that we could tackle," said Boeye.

Boeye said they are envisioning a trail that runs from the southeast entrance and exit of the cemetery to the Inman property, taking the trail through the campus up Inman Hill to Irene Court.

"We've discussed the project with city administrator Brad Wright. Wright said there's a city right of way between some houses there that connect Irene Court to Chautauqua Drive, so now we're looking at a complete trail segment that would take people from Inman Drive to Chautauqua Park," Boeye explained.

Another possible portion of the project would be a parking lot on the east side of the Inman campus that would provide additional loading and unloading space in the area. The final piece of the puzzle is funding.

"We're currently looking at Transportation Alternative Program funding which has been used for all of the trails that we've erected here. That would provide 80% of the project's funding, and we would pay 20% of it. We're also looking at a partnership between us, the City of Red Oak, and the Red Oak District. The city and school both love the idea, and conversations are moving forward, and we're waiting to hear from the engineer on cost estimates and see if the project can be done in total, or in phases," advised Boeye.

The board also approved a request to build a free library box at Little Wilson Park on Sunny Slope Drive. Drey offered to provide assistance to dig the hole for the post for the box if needed.

Fifth Five-Year Review Completed

Red Oak City Landfill Superfund Site
Red Oak, Montgomery County, Iowa
August 2022

Region 7
Iowa, Kansas,
Missouri, Nebraska
and Nine Tribal Nations

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Region 7 has started the Fifth Five-Year Review for the Sherwood Medical Co. Superfund Site. Five-Year Reviews are required by the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) when hazardous substances remain on-site above levels that permit unrestricted use and unlimited exposure. Five-Year Reviews provide an opportunity to evaluate the site remedy to determine whether it remains protective of human health and the environment. This Five-Year Review Report should be completed by September 2023.

Site project information is available to the public at web repositories, including previous Five-Year Reviews (see Reports and Documents). To view cleanup documents, please visit EPA's Site Profile Page at: www.epa.gov/superfund/sherwoodmedicalco (see Site Documents & Data). If you do not have internet access, you can view these documents online at this location: Norfolk Public Library, 308 W. Prospect Ave., Norfolk, NE 68701; 402-844-2100.

Montgomery County’s Doug and Deb Maher receive environmental leader award

Iowa Gov. Kim Reynolds, Lt. Gov. Adam Gregg, Secretary of Agriculture Mike Naig, and Department of Natural Resources Director Kayla Lyon recently recognized 40 Iowa farm families with Iowa Farm Environmental Leader Awards at the Iowa State Fair.

Doug and Deb Maher from Montgomery County were one of the recognized families.

The award acknowledges farmers who take voluntary actions to improve and protect our state’s natural resources while serving as leaders in their farming communities.

These farm families use scientifically proven practices like cover crops, wetlands, bioreactors, and saturated buffers that support the goals of the Iowa Nutrient Reduction Strategy. The recipients recognize the benefits of conservation practices extend beyond their fields to residents downstream, and their leadership encourages others to adopt similar conservation practices.

“Iowa farmers have always led on conservation and land stewardship, and continue to do so with more momentum than ever,” said Gov. Reynolds. “We are proud to recognize the recipients of the 2022 Iowa Farm Environmental Leader Awards who have shown great leadership in sustainably feeding and fueling our world, protecting our water and land resources, and supporting the next generation of farm families.”

“Achieving the goals that are outlined in the Iowa Nutrient Reduction Strategy to improve soil health and water quality requires people, partnerships, and resources,” added Secretary Naig. “We are proud to recognize these Iowa farm families. They are leaders in their communities and are making long-term investments in conservation that will benefit generations to come.”

“We take great pride in recognizing these leaders in our farming communities throughout our state that put sound conservation practices on the forefront of their operations,” said Director Lyon. “It’s now more important than ever that we focus on protecting and enhancing our natural resources—especially our lands and waters.” More than 690 Iowa farm families have been recognized since the creation of the Iowa Farm Environmental Leader Award in 2012.

Jerry Laughlin of Fremont County and Meier Family Farms of Page County also received the award locally.

SWITA receives grant for new buses

Rep. Cindy Axne (IA-03) applauded two new grants to update and replace Iowa’s aging statewide bus fleet Friday, Aug. 19. Currently, nearly 63% of the state’s public buses exceed the federal standard for use of life, according to the Iowa Public Transit Association.

The $27.8 million provided by the U.S. Department of Transportation includes a $12M grant for the Iowa Department of Transportation (IDOT) to purchase 90 new buses, cutaways, and vans for 26 of the state’s transit systems. The project is intended to improve transit system conditions, service reliability, and lower maintenance costs for providers across the state.

The new funding also includes a $15.8 million grant to IDOT for local transit agencies to purchase battery electric buses and charging equipment, as well as transit facilities construction and workforce development activities.

That $15.8 million grant will support the following agencies in the Third District:

5 replacement buses for Heart of Iowa Regional Transit Agency (HIRTA).

1 replacement and 2 expansions for Southwest Iowa Transit Agency (SWITA).

adopt, and surrender, guinea pigs.

“The farthest person who has come to us so far is a woman from South Dakota. She wanted to adopt a female guinea pig as a cage mate for the guinea pig she still had. She went all the way to Omaha, but couldn’t find one that she wanted. She went all the way back to South Dakota, then contacted us, and the next weekend, she came back down to us and adopted one of our shelter guinea pigs,” Studey said. “As for a surrender, I believe someone came from about three hours away to surrender the guinea pig to us because they didn’t trust their local animal shelter.”

Updegrove and Studey also made it very clear that they are not guinea pig breeders, they are a rescue shelter.

“Sometimes we get a pregnant mother and the baby guinea pigs are born here, but that’s the extent. We do not breed guinea pigs in this facility,” advised Updegrove.

The shelter has received constant praise from people both in and outside the community. Studey said it’s a great feeling.

“I’m a big animal lover, and this is perfect for me. They all have their own different personality, and it’s just so much fun,” Studey said. “They’re born prey, and their first instinct is to run and hide, but once you get them picked up, they love to cuddle.”

The shelter has also implemented some new features. They will deliver a guinea pig adopted guinea pig to a distance of up to 75 miles, for a $30 fee for gas.

The shelter can also board guinea pigs for families going on vacation for an extended period, at a cost of $10 per day, per guinea pig. All food, hay, and vegetables would be provided.

Among the tips for guinea pig owners, Studey recommends a two-week quarantine, especially if it is being introduced into a cage with other guinea pigs, to prevent sickness.

Cage sizes for one guinea pig is 39” by 21” or larger. For two, 47” by 23” or larger, for three, a cage size of 50” by 30” or larger, and for four, 62” by 30” or larger.

Also, since guinea pigs don’t produce their own Vitamin C, they have to have a diet of fruits and vegetables every day. Among the fruits safe for guinea pigs to consume are blueberries, bananas, apricots with no pit, seedless apples, melons, cherries, grapes, cranberries, pears, raspberries, pineapple, and strawberries.

When it comes to vegetables, guinea pigs need romaine lettuce, spring mix, parsley, cilantro, carrots, or sweet peppers daily. Two to four times a week, the guinea pigs need green beans, snap peas, squash, tomatoes, arugula, cabbage, cucumbers, or celery.

One to two times a week, the guinea pigs can eat asparagus, spinach, brussels sprouts, corn on the cob, cauliflower, and broccoli.

Foods that absolutely should not be fed to a guinea pig include dairy, potatoes, mushrooms, coconut, avocado, nuts, rhubarb, onions, garlic, hot peppers, and iceberg lettuce.

Studey and Updegrove both said that whether a person adopts from the shelter or not, they can stop in and get advice or information on taking care of their guinea pigs.

One thing the shelter is in need of, Studey said, is volunteer help, both on the weekdays and weekends. On weekdays, volunteer hours would be from 10 a.m. or earlier until 2 p.m.

“We’d love to have weekday help, but we also welcome any kids that want to come in after school or the weekends. That would be great,” advised Updegrove.

Also, donations of surplus vegetables that can be fed to the shelter guinea pigs are also accepted, as are cash donations, or donations of supplies.

“Nobody makes a penny, nobody even makes half a penny around here, it all goes straight back to the guinea pigs, and the building. Donations are very important for the care of the guinea pigs, and for the rent and upkeep of our building. We even have a little purple guinea pig bank if anyone is here and wants to make a cash donation,” Studey commented.

A fall yard sale fundraiser is planned for October, and donations of items for the sale are currently being accepted.

Hours of operation for Piggies Paradise are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily, or by appointment by calling 621-9199.

BOARD

The board unanimously approved the bid from Martin.

Lastly, during a work session, the board discussed potential policy and procedures for school lunch accounts of students or adults that reach a negative balance. Lorenz said the policy had to be reviewed due to the Federal Government not renewing the Free Breakfast/Lunch program for all students for the upcoming 2022-2023 school year.

Due to the fact that the board was in work session and no action could be taken, Board Member Roger Carlson suggested two board members meet with Lorenz to discuss potential policy which would be brought before the board for further discussion and action at the first meeting in September.

In other business, the board:

- Approved the support staff handbook and paraprofessional guidelines for the 2022-23 school year.
- Appointed Jamie Sherley as the district’s level one investigator and Tony Jones as the district’s alternate level one investigator, per Iowa code.

Elliott’s Turner to be inducted into aviation Hall of Fame

On Aug. 27, the Iowa Aviation Museum 29th Annual Wings Fly-In/Drive-In and the Hall of Fame Induction for 2022 will be held at the museum in Greenfield.

A pancake breakfast will be served by the Fontanelle Lions Club from 7:30 to 10 a.m. Price of the breakfast, which includes admission to the museum, is $8 for adults and children under 5 are free.

Immediately following the breakfast, Connie Rex Younger and Nicholas A. Turner will be inducted into the Iowa Aviation Hall of Fame. Turner is an Elliott native and retired Marine Corps Colonel and helicopter pilot who learned the ropes about flying while assisting his father, Larry Turner, in his helicopter business, Turner Copter Services Inc.

The younger Turner flew in Iraq and Afghanistan and was a pilot for President Barack Obama during his second term.

Turner joins his father, Larry, a 2020 Hall of Fame recipient who was inducted in 2021 due to the COVID-19 pandemic. In an interview in April, Turner said that finding out this year that he would be joining his father in the hall of fame this year was not only a shock, but humbling.

“I’m still questioning whether or not I’m worthy of such an honor. I don’t feel that I have the resume of some of the other guys that are in that hall of fame, and careers spanning 50 years. But it’s a great honor to be considered for it and be put on the wall with those guys. Humbled, I think, is the best way to describe how I feel about it,” stated Turner.
